Q. What influence has the environment had on interior design?

A. Diane, who has added a green living section to her website, explains, "Beautiful interiors are often inspired by the elements of nature and the rainbow of colors that follows. As our eco consciousness continues to grow, so does our awareness for a healthy indoor quality in our homes and offices."

Q. What can clients expect from Diane?

A. With more than twenty year's experience, Diane Rosen brings to her clients a complete line of interior design services for both residential and commercial projects.

Q. How does the interior design process work?

A. Diane Rosen starts with conversation and discuss your visions, wants and needs, your budget, and working in a timely manner. She gets to know your style and personality. She also will discuss any future needs such as aging in place, working with materials and interiors that environment and eco-friendly.

She creates a complete plan for you to view and review the scope of the work involved. Detailing your rooms for colors, fabrics, space, furniture arrangements, budget considerations and completing in a timely manner. Once the design and details have been decided and work has begun, you will get frequent updates to your project. Diane will personally monitor any and all contractors and installers to keep you well informed as progress moves forward to completion.

Q. What are the new interior design trends?

A. We're beginning to see a consumer re-evaluation of what it means to still live comfortably, yet finding a balance with changing technology and our personalized space. Consumers are looking for a sense of home in a growing global society. In the book Interior Trends 2011, released by IMM Cologne, designers are re-balancing and creating innovative new products that combine technology with environmentally eco-conscious guidelines. One example in furniture is using simple angular structures in natural warm woods and colors of ash grays or blacks followed by splashes of yellow or orange. Another is combining art and design to work with the virtual world in our real world, taking metals and plastics that combine to form a changeable surface. Colors are very neutral such as grays, black with using the warm side of the color wheel to compliment. What all of this means is that it's a very exciting, innovative time for all of us as designers and consumers.

Q. What is Diane's design style?

A. My style is developing a beautiful yet comfortable living or working environments for my clients. I listen very carefully to hear what is most important to their wants and needs, space and budget criteria. There are unlimited options in all style genre and it's by working with my clients that will define "the look".

Q. What is the best part of Diane's job?

A. Getting to know each and every one of my clients and then at the completed end hear a "wow!"
