UD – UNIVERSAL DESIGN

It's Not Just for Aging

We're beginning to hear more and more about this term, "universal design." While it has mostly been associated with aging in place, the definition of universal design is "the design of products and environments to be usable by all people, to the greatest extent possible, without the need for adaptation or specialized design."*

*The Center for Universal Design: www.designncsu.edu/cud

Universal design is design for all and not just for the aging. The next time you enter and leave your favorite mall with multiple packages or with your child and a stroller in tow or with your grandparents in a wheelchair, take notice of everything that makes your trip easier. The doors open automatically for your convenience, entryways are open and wider, the counter height is lower for all to see, or the lighting may be more comfortable or brighter to make everything easier to see. Those are just a few examples of universal design for all!

Let me know how I can help you make the most of your space at home or at your office.
